

UMSL COVID-19 Research Conversations

What do we know and what can we do about it?

UMSL faculty from a range of disciplines will share what they know and are learning about the impact COVID-19 has on vulnerable populations, systems, and communities. Join your colleagues from across the UMSL campus to explore potential areas of research collaboration related to developing novel interventions, approaches, and generating new knowledge that can help communities at home and around the world effectively respond to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Conversations start at 9:00 a.m. via Zoom every Friday beginning April 24, 2020.

COVID-19 Research Conversations are sponsored by the UMSL Office of Research Administration. To lead a conversation or for more information, contact Cynthia Jobe at jobec@umsl.edu.

April 24

The Impact of COVID-19 on Incarcerated Populations and the Justice System in St. Louis

Beth Huebner, Professor & Marissa Omori, Assistant Professor, Department of Criminology and Criminal Justice

May 1

Incidence of Gun Violence and Suicide in the Midst of COVID-19

Liz Sale, Associate Research Professor & Katie Ellison, Project Manager, Safer Homes Collaboration, MIMH

May 8

The Impact of COVID-19 on Immigrant & Refugee Communities in St. Louis

Adriano Udani, Associate Professor, Department of Political Science

May 15

Impact of COVID-19 on Opioid and Other Addicted Individuals, Providers and Systems of Care

Rachel Winograd, Associate Research Professor & Claire Wood, Assistant Research Professor, Missouri Institute of Mental Health

May 22

Incidence of Domestic Violence During COVID-19: Challenges and Research Directions

Kimberly Werner, Associate Dean for Research, College of Nursing & Annah Bender, Assistant Professor, School of Social Work

May 29

African-Americans' Lived Experiences of Compassion Fatigue in the Age of COVID-19

Sheila Grigsby, Assistant Professor, College of Nursing

